

Please reject the NAB's petition 04-160. XM listeners pay a monthly premium to listen to a variety of stations, like cable t.v. I mean, would you take the same channels of the air on cable? No, doesn't make sense, sounds more like someone is trying to get paid rather than doing what is in the best interest of the people. XM's service provides methods of blocking vulgar content, just like cable t.v. I see little difference between the two, cause after all, you call it broadcasting a show rather it's on the radio or on the t.v.
